N.A., and was the VP of Engineering and Operations at Kirby Exploration Company (NYSE: KEX). Previously, he spent over 15 years at Shell Oil (NYSE:RDS) where he served in various positions, including petroleum engineer, field engineering coordinator-marine division, until such time that he was a reservoir engineer and drilling supervisor. He eventually became Division Petroleum Engineer in Houston where he was responsible for all petroleum engineering functions in east, central and south Texas, including Texas offshore.

Mr. Mark Neuhaus, Chairman and President, stated, "we continue to work hard to develop a comprehensive strategy for the acquisition and development of these and additional oil and gas leases. Hiring Mr. Alexander is the next step which will help the Company to get the leases into production as quickly and efficiently as possible. We are happy to see this project moving forward and are confident that TX Holdings is well positioned to acquire additional leases and options on properties with proven and provable reserves.
