Item 8.01 Other Events.

Career Education Corporation will begin teach-outs at their Montreal and Fairmont, West Virginia campuses of its International Academy of Design and Technology (IADT) school group.

During the teach-out periods, both campuses will continue to operate and follow through with commitments to their current students to complete their programs at their current location. Current students and those who had previously enrolled in either campus will have the choice to transfer to another IADT campus.

This decision to teach-out and eventually close the two campuses was based on disappointing financial performance at these two schools. The company acquired these campuses in 1997, but they have not operated profitably despite company investments in improved operations.

The combined student population for the two schools was approximately 850, or less than 1.0 % of the company's total student population, at October 31, 2004. The teach-outs are expected to be substantially completed by the end of 2005. The losses to be incurred at these campuses during calendar year 2005 are expected to be approximately $0.01 to $0.02 per fully diluted share.
