Item 8.01 Other Events.Offering of Convertible Senior Notes

On January 10, 2012, PHH Corporation ("PHH" or the "Company") issued a press release announcing its intention to offer $150 million aggregate principal amount of convertible senior notes due 2017 (the "Offering"), subject to market and other conditions. A copy of this press release is filed herewith as Exhibit 99.1 and incorporated herein by reference.

In connection with the Offering, the Company disclosed in its prospectus supplement related thereto, filed with Securities and Exchange Commission on January 10, 2012 pursuant to Rule 424, the following information:

Preliminary 2011 Mortgage Production Statistics

Set forth in the table below are certain operating statistics for each of the quarters and years ended December 31, 2011 and 2010 for the Company's Mortgage Production segment. The financial information set forth in the table below for the quarter and year ended December 31, 2011 is preliminary and has not been reviewed by the Company's auditors, as the Company is in the early stages of compiling its financial information for the quarter and year ended December 31, 2011. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that the information set forth below will not differ materially from the financial information reflected in the Company's financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2011 when such financial statements have been finalized. In addition, there can be no assurance that the financial information set forth in the table below is indicative of future performance.

2011 Compared With 2010.

Interest rate lock commitments expected to close (IRLCs) decreased by 12% during 2011 compared to 2010 primarily due to the decline in mortgage interest rates during the latter half of 2010, which resulted in significant refinance activity. Total closings increased by 6% during 2011 compared to 2010 which was comprised of a 1% increase in purchase closings and a 10% increase in refinance closings. Purchase closings increased slightly during 2011 compared to 2010 and were driven by an improvement in home sales. The higher refinance closings in 2011 were primarily driven by the decline in mortgage interest rates during the latter half of 2010, which resulted in an increase in refinance activity and IRLCs that ultimately closed in 2011.

Liquidity Improvement Plans

The Company is currently reviewing various alternatives to improve its liquidity. Such alternatives may involve one or more of the following: (i) focusing its efforts to ensure that its operations are cash flow positive, which may include reductions in the Company's correspondent mortgage originations and capital expenditures; (ii) dispositions of non-core assets, including the Company's reinsurance business or assets related thereto; and (iii) pursuing alternative sources of financing for the Company mortgage servicing rights, which may include the sale of mortgage servicing rights or excess servicing rights (the portion of the mortgage servicing right representing the amount that exceeds the costs of actually servicing the loan). Any sale of mortgage servicing rights is dependent upon a number of factors, including (i) the buyer's assessment of the risk of the Company as a counterparty and (ii) bifurcation of representation and warranty liability, which, depending on the nature of servicing, requires approval from the government-sponsored entities or Ginnie Mae. While the Company believes that these alternatives will ensure that it has sufficient liquidity to meet its debt service obligations and operate its business, there can be no assurance that it will be successful in implementing any such alternatives or, if it is successful, that such alternatives will be sufficient to meet its liquidity needs. Additionally, if the Company is successful in executing upon any such alternatives, it could impact the Company's future results of operations, including revenue and net income. In addition, the Company may seek to undertake one or more deleveraging transactions which may include purchases of its outstanding indebtedness through open market or privately negotiated transactions with third parties or pursuant to one or more tender or exchange offers or otherwise, upon such terms and at such prices as well as with such consideration as the Company may determine. The Company does not know if or when it would consummate any such transactions, or alternative transactions, or the final terms of any such transactions. While the Company believes it will be able to successfully execute certain of these alternatives and meet its debt maturities in 2012 and 2013, the Company's failure to execute on such alternatives or generate positive cash flow from its business could raise doubt about its ability to continue as a going concern, which could, among other things, negatively impact its various business relationships and, as a result, its results of operations, cash flows and liquidity.

Potential Private-Label Relationship

The Company is also pursuing additional private-label relationships and is in advanced discussions with a financial firm which may result in what the Company believes to be a significant private-label relationship, although there can be no assurance that the Company will be able to reach an agreement with this financial firm. This transaction would likely require the Company to assume a significant number of employees as well as take on new office space and incur additional start-up costs; however, the Company expects such costs to be offset by incremental revenue from this contemplated relationship.

Consumer Financial Protection Bureau Investigation

In January 2012, the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (the "CFPB") notified the Company that the CFPB had opened an investigation to determine whether mortgage insurance premium ceding practices to the Company's captive reinsurers comply with the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act and other laws enforced by the CFPB and requested certain related documents and information for review. The Company has provided reinsurance services in exchange for the premiums ceded, and believes that it has complied with the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act and other laws. The Company has not provided reinsurance on loans originated after 2009. There can be no assurance whether or not this investigation will result in the imposition of any penalties and fines against the Company or its subsidiaries.

Forward-Looking Statements

Certain statements in this Current Report on Form 8-K are forward-looking statements within the meaning of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. Generally, forward looking-statements are not based on historical facts but instead represent only our current beliefs regarding future events. All forward-looking statements are, by their nature, subject to risks, uncertainties and other factors that could cause actual results, performance or achievements to differ materially from those expressed or implied in such forward-looking statements. Investors are cautioned not to place undue reliance on these forward-looking statements.
