Item 7.01 Regulation FD Disclosure

Letter to Shareholders from Patrick M. Byrne, President, CEO, and Founder

Dear Owners,

In March I disclosed that this year I would be selling stock to fund sidecar investments with the company. As was disclosed in SEC filings today, I have sold roughly 10% of my Overstock.com stock holdings. You should not be alarmed, for six reasons:

- 1) Within a matter of days, I will reinvest most of this money into two co-investments with Overstock and Medici Ventures (thus I am eating a double dose of my own cooking, as months ago I promised you I would).
- 2) You will soon see me honor several professors from my distant past who should not be asked to wait any longer.
- 3) I have to pay Uncle Sam his cut. Remember, I didn't build this. Washington built this.

I feel very encouraged by the speed of improvements in our retail business (which also makes me comfortable taking this moment to sell). I also think the Medici Ventures business model is playing out beautifully, and we are getting to park your capital in some of the most exciting blockchain innovations in the world, coupled with the tech and corporate support that is making Medici Ventures a sought-after capital partner.

As was announced six months ago, I needed to sell stock during this quarter to meet such other obligations. I am disappointed that I when the deadline arrived for my sales this quarter, the stock had dropped (I sadly note that over the last 180 days the correlation between OSTK's and Bitcoin's daily movements has been 85.5%, and again warn people: we don't have significant holdings of Bitcoin).

In the 18 years I've worked here, I have only ever sold a tiny sliver of my stock before (and that was 10 years ago, in the midst of my Mitzvah with Wall Street, when I wanted to test the system). Most of these 18 years I did not draw a salary (and for the last several, have drawn $100,000 so as to avoid being one of those schmucks who does not draw a salary).

So, I've cashed in 1/10 of my chips (most of it, to reinvest next to you). Don't worry, I'm still in the game, and we're going to bring this House to its knees.

I look forward to our next meeting. Until then, I remain,
Your humble servant,
Patrick
