The following is correspondence sent from Rockwell Collins to certain EuMEA Leaders.

Dear EuMEA leaders,

Yesterday was a big day for our Company. As you have seen RC and UTC have reached an agreement whereby UTC will acquire Rockwell Collins. For many years the market was speculating on this deal and it's now becoming real. While we are all excited about this news, I do understand that it may also create some anxiety and uncertainty.

So I thought I would share my perspective having listened to yesterday's investor UTC call led by Gregory Hayes, CEO of UTC, and Kelly.

Here is why I feel really good for our future:

- 1- Our new name will be Collins Aerospace Systems. Looking at the other brands which were acquired by UTC (Goodrich and Hamilton Sundstrand), it's a strong statement and recognizes the strength of our brand and the importance we bring to this new business.
- 2- Kelly will be the CEO of Collins Aerospace Systems. We know and trust him and he knows and trusts us. If you look at how he successfully integrated ARINC and BE/Aerospace, it enabled us to generate more synergies and sales by coordinating our offerings while not breaking what made them successful.
- 3- UTC paid a high premium for Rockwell Collins. Clearly they value the whole portfolio we bring to the Corporation and the worse thing they could do is damage or destroy that value.
- 4- This deal, when it will be completed by the third quarter of calendar year 2018, will be transformational for the Industry. We will be part of a $23 billion business, one of the largest suppliers to the OEM's and part of a 70,000 employee base. The combination of Rockwell Collins and UTC Aerospace systems will give us the scale to innovate and deliver more value for our customers and employees.

These are my feelings. However, until the completion of the deal, it's business as usual. I would recommend you to talk to your teams about this acquisition inviting them also to remain focused on achieving our goals and commitments.

Many thanks for your leadership.
