The aggregate purchase price of the 670 Shares owned directly by Mr. Terino is approximately $16,013, excluding brokerage commissions.

Item 4. Purpose of Transaction.

Item 4 is hereby amended to add the following:

On February 15, 2018, Starboard Value LP (“Starboard”) delivered a letter to the Issuer, pursuant to Section 220 of the Delaware General Corporation Law, demanding production of certain of the Issuer’s books and records (the “Demand Letter”). The purpose of the demand is to allow Starboard to investigate the actions of the Issuer’s management team and Board of Directors (the “Board”) in connection with (i) the Issuer’s July 2016 acquisition of Olapic, Inc. (the “Olapic Transaction”) and (ii) the Issuer’s process, commenced purportedly in July 2017, to explore and evaluate a broad range of strategic and financial alternatives to enhance shareholder value, including a possible merger or sale of the Issuer (the “Strategic Review Process”).

Specifically, based on Starboard’s knowledge of the Issuer’s business, it believes that the Issuer’s decision to engage in the Olapic Transaction cannot be the product of rational or disinterested corporate decision-making and various aspects of the acquisition suggest that there was a lack of proper Board oversight during the due diligence phase leading up to the Olapic Transaction. On the date the deal was announced, the Issuer’s stock fell as much as 30% and analysts highlighted both the dilutive nature of the Olapic Transaction, as well as the additional risks to which it would expose the Issuer. Indeed, Olapic has performed far worse than shareholders were led to expect. In just over a year since the Olapic Transaction, the Issuer has already reduced guidance for Olapic several times. Most concerning of all is that many of Olapic’s issues were entirely foreseeable. For example, on the Issuer’s second quarter 2017 earnings conference call held on July 28, 2017, the Issuer’s CEO and President Scott Landers said that Olapic’s revenue ramp would be delayed due to a contract structure that required that revenue be recognized only when the technology is deployed on a customer's e-commerce site, rather than upon signing a contract, as the Issuer had expected. It seems apparent that even basic accounting due diligence would have detailed Olapic's contract structure, its revenue recognition policy, and any changes to revenue recognition that would be required post acquisition. Starboard also questions how the Issuer did not foresee the difficulty in cross selling Olapic's services to the Issuer's traditional customers. Given these facts, Starboard believes the process engaged by the Issuer and its Board in approving the Olapic Transaction is seriously suspect. Starboard believes that the Olapic Transaction also raises questions about the Issuer's financial controls, Audit Committee processes, and quality of accounting advisors and the processes utilized during due diligence leading up to the Olapic Transaction.

CUSIP NO. 61022P100

With respect to the Strategic Review Process, on January 31, 2018, the Issuer issued a statement to shareholders (the “January 31 Statement”), announcing for the first time that it had engaged J.P. Morgan as of July 2017 to assist with the Strategic Review Process. The information contained in the January 31 Statement contradicted previous statements made by the Issuer’s CEO and members of the Board to Starboard and other shareholders. In Starboard’s view, while a company may engage in a confidential strategic process under appropriate circumstances, it cannot engage in obfuscation, and at times seemingly outright deception, in discussing the prospects of such a process with its shareholders.

Moreover, based on the limited information provided in the January 31 Statement, the Strategic Review Process appears to have been fundamentally flawed, if not an entirely disingenuous attempt to create the pretense of a process where in fact no legitimate process took place. In the January 31 Statement, the Issuer claims to have contacted 18 strategic and 10 financial buyers. It is Starboard’s understanding that when companies of the size and profile of the Issuer run strategic alternatives processes, those companies typically contact far more than 10 financial buyers, and typically contact more financial buyers than strategic buyers. The fact that the Issuer purportedly contacted 18 strategic buyers, far more than could reasonably be expected to have an interest in this particular company, suggests the Issuer intended to run a broad, rather than a targeted, process. Yet it contacted just 10 financial buyers, far fewer than could reasonably be expected to have an interest, suggesting that the process may not have been designed to maximize the likelihood of receiving a bona fide offer. For example, when J.P. Morgan was asked to run a strategic alternatives process for WebMD Health Corp., another niche technology company with potential private equity interest, J.P. Morgan reached out to a total of 122 parties to evaluate their interest in a potential transaction. Indeed, following the January 31 Statement, Starboard reached out to a number of companies that J.P. Morgan would have reasonably been expected to contact during the Strategic Review Process for the Issuer—and none of them were contacted.

Starboard further believes that the purported failure of the Strategic Review Process only renders it more suspect. The significant cash flows of the business, together with the fact that the stock price languished below $18 when the Strategic Review Process began, raises questions concerning the Issuer’s statement that “no definitive offers were received” and whether the Issuer or its advisors may have discouraged parties from submitting offers at prices that may have been acceptable to shareholders generally.

Together, Starboard believes that these factors suggest that the Strategic Review Process was fundamentally flawed, as well as actively concealed from shareholders. Specifically, Starboard questions whether the Strategic Review Process was no more than a pretense, disguised to ward off interested activist investors while securing the positions of incumbent Board members and managers. The timing and substance of the January 31 Statement raises further questions and concerns about the accuracy of the Issuer’s disclosures regarding the Strategic Review Process and whether the Board ran a legitimate and open process to maximize value for the Issuer’s shareholders.

Accordingly, Starboard is seeking the books and records requested in the Demand Letter in order to: (i) determine whether the Issuer engaged in proper due diligence leading up to the Olapic Transaction and whether the Olapic

Transaction was entered into with the best interests of shareholders in mind; (ii) analyze Board processes relating to the Olpic Transaction to determine whether there were failures in Board oversight in connection with the Olpic Transaction and the post-Olpic Transaction integration of Olpic, Inc., as well as any material deficiencies and/or mismanagement with respect to understanding the Issuer's business in connection with the Olpic Transaction; (iii) determine whether members of the Issuer's management team and/or Board engaged in wrongdoing by misleading Starboard and other shareholders of the Issuer with respect to the Issuer's engagement of J.P. Morgan in July 2017 and the Strategic Review Process; (iv) analyze Board processes relating to the Strategic Review Process to determine whether the Issuer and its managers undertook a legitimate, good faith effort to explore means to maximize value for shareholders or used the process as a pretense intended to palliate frustrated and possibly insurgent shareholders; (v) determine whether members of the Issuer's management team and Board are fit to continue serving as directors and officers of the Issuer in light of the issues set forth in the Demand Letter; and (vi) depending on the Issuer's responses and Starboard's assessment of the foregoing, to determine the degree of change that it believes is required at the Issuer, including with respect to board composition.
