THE VALUE LINE FUND, INC.

TO OUR VALUE LINE

TO OUR SHAREHOLDERS:

The first half of 2004 was a frustrating time for equity investors. Following new post-recession highs in the first quarter, the stock market suffered its first 5% correction since the current market rally began in early 2003. The Standard & Poor's 500-stock Index and the Dow Jones Industrial Average fell about 5%, but the corrections reached about 10% in the NASDAQ and the Russell 2000 small-cap index. Rising oil prices, the handover of power in Iraq, and the looming prospect of the first increase in interest rates in several years all contributed to a high degree of uncertainty. Corporate profit growth was the one bright spot as year-over-year growth could well exceed 20% in the first half. While equity markets do like to "climb a wall of worry", so far that climb has been a difficult one, with the S&P 500 Index(1) generating a modest 3.44% return through June 30th. The Value Line Fund returned 1.47% in the comparable period.

In managing the Fund, we rely on the Value Line Timeliness Ranking System, which favors those companies that have high current earnings, strong earnings growth, positive earnings surprises, reasonable valuations and improving relative stock-price performance. As the year began, technology and consumer discretionary stocks were favored by the Timeliness Ranking System due to strong earnings and price momentum in 2003. Indeed, the tech and consumer discretionary stocks did participate in the market gains early in the first quarter, and we increased exposure to these groups. These sectors, however, were two of the worst-performing ones for the second quarter of this year, causing us to selectively reduce our holdings and overall exposure to technology and consumer discretionary industries as earnings and/or price momentum deteriorated. The energy, industrial, and consumer staple sectors were the best performers during the first half of 2004, due to rising oil prices, expanding manufacturing demand, and some sector rotation. We increased the Fund's holdings in industrials and more than doubled the consumer staples position. We reduced the Fund's holdings in the financial sector in the first quarter in the belief that interest rates would soon rise and possibly threaten that group's earnings; the financial sector posted a small loss for the six month period. Finally, we increased investments in the health care sector.

Going forward, we remain committed to investing in those companies that show strong earnings growth and positive earnings surprises. We believe that the Fund is well positioned to benefit from today's market and economic environments, as long as corporate profits remain strong, consumers and business owners continue to spend at a moderate pace, labor markets continue to improve, and interest rates remain accommodative, albeit at levels higher than in the recent past.

We thank you for your confidence in Value Line and appreciate your continued support.

Sincerely,

/s/ Jean Bernhard Buttner

ECONOMIC OBSERVATIONS

The U.S. economic expansion, which proceeded strongly from the middle of 2003 through the opening six months of this year, has more recently started to show some signs of fatigue. True, the business upturn is hardly collapsing, and we are still seeing improvement in the capital goods area and in certain industrial sectors. However, manufacturing, in general, is now growing more slowly than it had been, while the retail and residential construction markets are pulling back a little. Our sense is that growth will now proceed at a moderate 3% to 4% rate over the next several quarters to a year.

The slowing in growth may well have positive ramifications. That is because the current deceleration in economic activity appears mild and seems unlikely to evolve into a full-fledged slowdown barring another surge in oil prices. (Higher oil prices limit economic growth by taking money out of the pockets of consumers and businesses). If we are correct and the economy shifts to a modestly slower, but sustainable pace, with accompanying lower inflation, the Federal Reserve, which has increased interest rates twice in the past several months, might well be inclined to proceed slowly and somewhat cautiously in raising rates over the next several months.

Our current benign economic forecast, it should be noted, excludes any allowance for a further escalation in global military conflict or a new act of terrorism, neither of which can be accurately predicted as to scope or timing.

THE VALUE LINE FUND, INC.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS (UNAUDITED)

JUNE 30, 2004

1. SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

The Fund is registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended, as a diversified, open-end management investment company whose primary investment objective is long-term growth of capital.

Edgar Filing: VALUE LINE FUND INC - Form N-CSRS

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates. The following is a summary of significant accounting policies consistently followed by the Fund in the preparation of its financial statements.

(A) SECURITY VALUATION. Securities listed on a securities exchange and over-the-counter securities traded on the NASDAQ national market are valued at the closing sales prices on the date as of which the net asset value is being determined. In the absence of closing sales prices for such securities and for securities traded in the over-the-counter market, the security is valued at the midpoint between the latest available and representative asked and bid prices. Securities for which market quotations are not readily available or that are not readily marketable and all other assets of the Fund are valued at fair value as the Board of Directors may determine in good faith. Short-term instruments with maturities of 60 days or less at the date of purchase are valued at amortized cost, which approximates market value. Short-term instruments with maturities greater than 60 days at the date of purchase are valued at the midpoint between the latest available and representative asked and bid prices, and commencing 60 days prior to maturity such securities are valued at amortized cost.

(B) REPURCHASE AGREEMENTS. In connection with transactions in repurchase agreements, the Fund's custodian takes possession of the underlying collateral securities, the value of which exceeds the principal amount of the repurchase transaction, including accrued interest. To the extent that any repurchase transaction exceeds one business day, the value of the collateral is marked-to-market on a daily basis to ensure the adequacy of the collateral. In the event of default of the obligation to repurchase, the Fund has the right to liquidate the collateral and apply the proceeds in satisfaction of the obligation. Under certain circumstances, in the event of default or bankruptcy by the other party to the agreement, realization and/or retention of the collateral or proceeds may be subject to legal proceedings.

(C) FEDERAL INCOME TAXES. It is the Fund's policy to comply with the requirements of the Internal Revenue Code applicable to regulated investment companies, including the distribution requirements of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, and to distribute all of its taxable income to its shareholders. Therefore, no federal income tax or excise tax provision is required.

(D) SECURITY TRANSACTIONS AND DISTRIBUTIONS. Security transactions are accounted for on the date the securities are purchased or sold. Interest income is accrued as earned. Realized gains and losses on sales of securities are calculated for financial accounting and federal income tax purposes on the identified cost basis. Dividend income and distributions to shareholders are recorded on the ex-dividend date. Distributions are determined in accordance with income tax regulations which may differ from generally accepted accounting principles.

(E) REPRESENTATIONS AND INDEMNIFICATIONS. In the normal course of business the Fund enters into contracts that contain a variety of representations and warranties which provide general indemnifications. The Fund's maximum exposure under these arrangements is unknown, as this would involve future claims that may be made against the Fund that have not yet occurred. However, based on experience, the Fund expects the risk of loss to be remote.
