On screen graphic: Building an entirely new health care company

LM: The combination of CVS and Aetna is really exciting and it fills an unmet need in the current healthcare system for better access to high quality, lower cost care right where we live and work.

MB: We were looking for a way to get into the community and they were looking to get more into the payer space given all the things that they were doing about improving health. It just seemed a natural conclusion to put the companies together.

LM: By bringing together the expertise of our two companies, we can help remake the consumer healthcare experience at the local level and our goal is to create a point of access to care in the community that is high quality, one that's more accessible, and one that's less expensive.

On screen graphic: Revolutionizing the consumer health care experience

MB: Think of each CVS store as the front door for the health care system for a consumer, so we have ten thousand new front doors for the health care system in communities across America, all within five miles of eighty percent of the U.S. public. How much more convenient can you get than that?

LM: So we'll be the local front door to health care integrating more closely the work of doctors, pharmacists, other health care professionals and insurers to help consumers navigate a complex health care system.

On screen graphic: Delivering a better health care experience

MB: We need to continue to take care of our customers. Everyone has an opportunity to join us on this new journey. It's about growth. It's about being in more markets . It's about providing more services for our members. So, everybody has an opportunity to participate going forward. We need to take care of our customers now. Until we close this deal, we're still independent companies and so we all have to do our job; we all have to continue to work on what's going to be coming in the future.

On screen graphic: Uniquely integrated community-based health care experience

LM: Combining the analytics of Aetna and CVS's human touch, we'll create a health care platform that's built around individuals. So, we have a unique opportunity to re-define access to high quality care, in local lower-cost settings, whether it's in the community, at home, or through digital tools. And it's the natural next step for both companies as we work to put the consumer at the center of health care delivery.
