RICK JELINEK MESSAGE TO ALL MARKETS ASSOCIATES

Hello. I'm happy to have the opportunity to spend a few minutes with you today to discuss our 2017 accomplishments and the year ahead. Only 10 months ago we were still working on the proposed Humana transaction. And since then, so much has transpired in a relatively short period.

In every office across the country, you are working hard to improve the healthcare experience so that our members receive the care and guidance they need to achieve their best health. To name just a few highlights of the year:

We've had great progress across the company in Medicare growth and STAR ratings.

Our value story and products are resonating in this market and across the country, with particular success coming from Small Group AFA and Medicare.

At the same time, through our network function we continued to grow our network of providers committed to value-based care.

As you know, earlier this month, we announced plans to combine Aetna with CVS Health. Together, we will build an entirely new health care concept to become the trusted front door to health care. This is an exciting evolution in our company strategy.

Our vision is to deliver a better experience, reduce costs and improve access to trusted health care experts in communities across the country.

The planned transaction allows us to advance our strategy more quickly by getting deeper into local communities where people live, work and play, and supporting them to achieve their health goals. CVS Health and Aetna are committed to using CVS's retail locations to further advance our strategy for Aetna members and other consumers. We will create community health hubs that will provide a new health care solution dedicated to improving consumer well-being and provide advocacy services to help answer questions about health, prescription drugs and health care benefits.

We are in exciting times and I know you have many questions. We expect the transaction to close in the second half of 2018, following regulatory and other required approvals. And until then, Aetna and CVS Health will continue to operate in every respect as two independent companies. Nothing is changing at this time. Even after the transaction closes, it will take time for the companies to completely integrate and for change to occur.

What each of us must do now is the same as it was before the announcement – we must run our businesses and meet our commitments and expectations for our customers, members and providers and help our members access the care they need. We will continue to make the provider experience simpler from the point of contracting all the way through paying claims. And when we do these things, our customers and providers will want to stay with us. And for those who aren't currently customers or providers with us today, they'll want to join us.

I am proud of what we have accomplished this year and I appreciate everything each of you has done -- and I appreciate everything you will continue to do for our customers, members and providers.

I wish you and your loved ones a very happy holiday season and a happy New Year.

Thank you.
