This Amendment No. 1 (Amendment) amends and supplements the Tender Offer Statement on Schedule TO (the Schedule TO) filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission on October 18, 2004 by HCC Insurance Holdings, Inc., a Delaware corporation (the Company), relating to the offer to exchange (the Exchange Offer) an aggregate principal amount of $172,442,000 of the Company s 2.00% Convertible Exchange Notes due 2021 (the New Notes) for a like principal amount of the Company s issued and outstanding 2.00% Convertible Notes due 2021 (the Old Notes) from the registered holders thereof (the Holders) upon the terms and subject to the conditions contained in the Offering Memorandum dated October 18, 2004 (the Offering Memorandum) and the related Letter of Transmittal. The Exchange Offer is being made by the Company pursuant to an exemption from registration under Section 3(a)(9) of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended.

Item 1. Summary Term Sheet; Item 2. Subject Company Information; Item 3. Identity and Background of Filing Person; Item 4. Terms of the Transaction

The information set forth under Summary Summary of the Exchange Offer in the Offering Memorandum is hereby amended and supplemented by removing the information under the heading Taxation and replacing it with the following:

We believe and intend to take the position that the modifications to the Old Notes resulting from the exchange of Old Notes for New Notes will not constitute a significant modification of the Old Notes for U.S. federal income tax purposes. If our position is respected, there would be no U.S. federal income tax consequences to a holder who exchanges Old Notes for New Notes pursuant to the exchange offer. However, the U.S. federal income tax consequences of the exchange offer and of the ownership and disposition of the New Notes are unclear. If, contrary to our position, the exchange constitutes a significant modification, the tax consequences to you could materially differ. See United States Federal Income Tax Considerations for more information on tax consequences of the exchange offer.

The information set forth under Summary Summary of the Exchange Offer in the Offering Memorandum is hereby amended and supplemented by removing the information under the heading Old Notes Not Tendered or Accepted for Exchange and replacing it with the following:

Any Old Notes not accepted for exchange for any reason will be returned without expense to you promptly after the expiration or termination of this exchange offer. If you do not exchange your Old Notes in this exchange offer, or if your Old Notes are not accepted for exchange, you will continue to hold your Old Notes and will be entitled to all the rights and subject to all the limitations applicable to the Old Notes.

The information set forth under About Forward-Looking Statements in the Offering Memorandum is amended and supplemented by deleting such section in its entirety and replacing it with the following:

This memorandum contains certain forward-looking statements. We have based these forward-looking statements on our current expectations and projections about future events. These forward-looking statements include information about possible or assumed future results of our operations. All statements, other than statements of historical facts, included or incorporated by reference in this memorandum that address activities, events or developments that we expect or anticipate may occur in the future, including such things as future capital expenditures, business strategy, competitive strengths, goals, growth of our business and operations, plans and references to future successes may be considered forward-looking statements. Also, when we use words such as anticipate, believe, estimate, expect, intend, plan, probably or similar expressions, we are making forward-looking statements. Many risks and uncertainties may impact the matters addressed in these forward-looking statements.

Many possible events or factors could affect our future financial results and performance, including, among other things:

the occurrence of additional terrorist activities;

changing legal and social trends and inherent uncertainties (including but not limited to those uncertainties associated with our reserves) in the loss estimation process can adversely impact the adequacy of loss reserves and the allowance for reinsurance recoverables;

industry, economic conditions and catastrophic events can affect the ability and/or willingness of reinsurers to pay balances due and our ability to obtain adequate reinsurance;

catastrophic losses, including hurricanes, windstorms, earthquakes, hailstorms, explosions, severe winter weather, fires and man-made events;

state, federal and foreign regulations can impede our ability to charge adequate rates and efficiently allocate capital;

changes to the Internal Revenue Code and related regulations or positions taken by the Internal Revenue Service;

economic conditions, interest rates, and foreign exchange rate volatility can have a significant impact on the market value of fixed maturity and equity investments as well as the carrying value of other assets and liabilities;

Table of Contents

market value of fixed income securities may reduce the value of our investment portfolio;

assessments by states for high risk or otherwise uninsured individuals;

changes in our assigned financial strength; and our ability to receive dividends from our insurance companies to meet our cash flow, debt, dividend and other corporate expense obligations.

These events or factors could cause our results or performance to differ materially from those we express in our forward-looking statements. Although we believe that the assumptions underlying our forward-looking statements are reasonable, any of these assumptions and therefore also the forward-looking statements based on these assumptions, could themselves prove to be inaccurate. In light of the significant uncertainties inherent in the forward-looking statements which are included in this memorandum, our inclusion of this information is not a representation by us or any other person that our objectives and plans will be achieved.

Our forward-looking statements speak only as of the date made and we will update these forward-looking statements only to the extent that there has been a material change in the information previously disclosed to you or the securities laws otherwise require us to do so. In light of these risks, uncertainties and assumptions, any forward-looking events discussed in this memorandum may not occur.

The information set forth under Questions and Answers About the Exchange Offer in the Offering Memorandum is amended and supplemented by deleting the answer to the question entitled What are the conditions to the completion of the exchange offer? in its entirety and replacing it with the following:

A.The exchange offer is subject to a limited number of conditions, some of which we may waive in our sole discretion. Most significantly, we must not have terminated or withdrawn the exchange offer, which we may do if any of these conditions are not satisfied. If any of these conditions are not satisfied, we will not be obligated to accept and exchange any tendered Old Notes. Prior to the expiration date of the exchange offer, we reserve the right to amend the exchange offer in our sole discretion for any or no reason. We describe the conditions to the exchange offer in greater detail in the section titled The Exchange Offer Conditions to Exchange Offer.

The information set forth under Questions and Answers About the Exchange Offer in the Offering Memorandum is amended and supplemented by deleting the answer to the question entitled How will you be taxed on the exchange of your Old Notes? in its entirety and replacing it with the following:

Table of Contents

Please see the section of this memorandum titled United States Federal Income Tax Considerations. The tax consequences to you of the exchange offer will depend on your individual circumstances. You should consult your own tax advisor for a full understanding of the tax consequences of participating in the exchange offer in light of your own particular circumstances.

The information set forth under Risk Factors in the Offering Memorandum is amended and supplemented by adding the following under the heading Risk Related to the Exchange Offer :

The U.S. federal income tax consequences of the exchange offer are unclear.

We intend to take the position that the exchange of Old Notes for New Notes does not constitute a significant modification of the Old Notes for U.S. federal income tax purposes, and that the New Notes will be treated as a continuation of the Old Notes. Consistent with this position there will be no U.S. federal income tax consequences to a holder who exchanges Old Notes for New Notes pursuant to the exchange offer. That position, however, is uncertain and could be challenged by the IRS. If, contrary to our position, the exchange of Old Notes for the New Notes constitutes a significant modification of the Old Notes, the exchange of an Old Note for a New Note would be treated as an exchange for U.S. federal income tax purposes possibly resulting in the recognition of gain or loss. In addition, in this case, the New Notes would be treated as newly issued Notes and the tax rules applicable to the New Notes may materially differ from the tax rules applicable to the Old Notes.

The information set forth under Certain United States Federal Income Tax Considerations in the Offering Memorandum is amended and supplemented by deleting such section, including the title, in its entirety and replacing it with the following:

UNITED STATES FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSIDERATIONS

The following discussion is a summary of the material United States federal income tax consequences of the exchange of Old Notes for the New Notes pursuant to the Exchange Offer. The discussion set forth below applies only to the beneficial owners of the Old Notes (Holders) that receive the New Notes in exchange for Old Notes pursuant to the Exchange Offer. This summary is based upon laws, regulations, rulings and decisions currently in effect, all of which are subject to change or differing interpretations at any time, possibly with retroactive effect. There can be no assurance that the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) will not challenge one or more of the conclusions described herein, and we have not obtained, nor do we intend to obtain, a ruling from the IRS or an opinion of counsel with respect to the United States federal income tax consequences of the Exchange Offer or of holding Old Notes, New Notes or its common stock.

Table of Contents

Moreover, this summary deals only with Holders who hold the Old Notes, New Notes or common stock received in connection with such securities as capital assets within the meaning of Section 1221 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the Code), and does not purport to deal with persons in special tax situations, such as financial institutions, insurance companies, regulated investment companies, tax exempt investors, dealers in securities and currencies, certain former U.S. citizens or residents, persons holding the Old Notes or New Notes as a position in a straddle, hedge, conversion transaction, constructive sale or other integrated transaction for tax purposes. In addition, this summary deals only with Holders who acquired the Old Notes upon original issuance at the original offering price. Further, this discussion does not address the consequences under United States alternative minimum tax rules, United States federal estate or gift tax laws, the laws of any U.S. state or locality, or any foreign tax laws. Accordingly, Holders are urged to consult their own tax advisors concerning the consequences, in their particular circumstances, of the Exchange Offer and of ownership and disposition of the Old Notes, the New Notes and common stock received in connection with such securities, under the United States federal tax laws and the laws of any relevant state, local or non-U.S. taxing jurisdiction.

Tax Consequences of Exchange Offer for Holders Participating in the Exchange Offer and Treatment of New Notes. The exchange of the Old Notes for New Notes will be treated as an exchange for United States federal income tax purposes (which we will refer to as a Tax Exchange) only if there is deemed to be a significant modification of the Old Notes. The relevant Treasury regulations provide that a modification of a debt instrument is a significant modification only if, based on all of the facts and circumstances, the legal rights and obligations of the new debt instrument differ from those of the old debt instrument to a degree that is economically significant. Because there is no authority interpreting the relevant Treasury regulations, their application to the Exchange Offer is unclear. Nevertheless, we believe and intend to take the position that the modifications to the Old Notes resulting from the Exchange Offer will not constitute a significant modification of the Old Notes, and, therefore, we intend to treat the Exchange Offer as not resulting in a Tax Exchange of the Old Notes for the New Notes. That position, however, is uncertain and could be challenged by the IRS.

If, consistent with our position, the Exchange Offer does not constitute a significant modification of the Old Notes, the Exchange Offer will not be treated as a Tax Exchange and the New Notes will be treated as a continuation of the Old Notes. In that case there will be no United States federal income tax consequences to a Holder who exchanges Old Notes for New Notes pursuant to the Exchange Offer, and any such Holder will have the same adjusted tax basis and holding period in the New Notes as it had in the Old Notes immediately before the Exchange Offer.

There can be no assurance that the IRS will not challenge our treatment of the Exchange Offer. If, contrary to our position, the Exchange Offer constitutes a significant modification of the Old Notes, the Exchange Offer will be treated as a Tax Exchange. Although the status of the Tax Exchange is not free from doubt, we believe (and would take the position that) such a Tax Exchange would constitute a recapitalization for United States federal income tax purposes. Whether such a Tax Exchange qualifies as a recapitalization depends on, among other things, whether the Old Notes and the New Notes constitute securities for United States federal income tax purposes. The rules for determining whether debt instruments such as the Old Notes and New Notes are securities are unclear. The term security is not defined in the Code or Treasury regulations and has not been clearly defined by judicial decisions. The determination of whether a debt instrument is a security requires an overall evaluation of the nature of the debt instrument, with the term of the instrument usually regarded as one of the most significant factors. A debt instrument with a term of more than ten years is generally considered to be a security. We believe that the Old Notes and the New Notes constitute securities for United States federal income tax purposes. Accordingly, we would take the position that a Tax Exchange would constitute a recapitalization. Consistent with this position, a Holder would not recognize any gain or loss as a result of a Tax Exchange and, upon such a Tax Exchange (i) such Holder's adjusted tax basis in the New Notes would equal the Holder's adjusted tax basis in the Old Notes and (ii) a Holder's holding period in the New Notes would include the Holder's holding period in the Old Notes.

If, contrary to our belief, the Tax Exchange was not treated as a recapitalization, a U.S. Holder would recognize gain or loss on the exchange of Old Notes for New Notes in an amount equal to the difference between (i) the issue price of the New Notes received and (ii) the U.S. Holder's adjusted tax basis in the Old Notes. Any gain or loss recognized by a U.S. Holder would be long-term capital gain or loss if the U.S. Holder held the Old Notes as a capital asset for more than one year. A U.S. Holder's tax basis in the New Notes would be equal to the fair market value of the New Notes, and the U.S. Holder's holding period for the New Notes would commence on the date after the Exchange Offer is completed. A Holder other than a U.S. Holder (a non-U.S. Holder) would not recognize gain or loss for United States federal income tax purposes on the Exchange Offer unless such Holder was present in the United States for 183 days or more in the year of the Exchange Offer. For purposes of this paragraph, a U.S. Holder means a beneficial holder of Old Notes or New Notes received in the Exchange Offer that is a citizen or resident of the United States, a corporation, partnership or other entity formed under the laws of the United States or any political subdivision thereof, an estate the income of which is subject to United States federal income taxation regardless of its source and a trust subject to the primary supervision of a court within the United States and the control of or more U.S. fiduciaries as described in Section 7701(a)(30) of the Code or any other person whose income or gain with respect to the Exchange Offer is effectively connected with the conduct of a United States trade or business.
