Item 1.01 Entry into Material Definitive Agreement

On June 24, 2010, Altairnano, Inc., (the “Company”) a wholly-owned subsidiary of Altair Nanotechnologies Inc. and Proterra Inc. (“Proterra”) entered into an Amended and Restated Master Product Purchase Agreement (the “Master Purchase Agreement”), which amends and restates the prior purchase agreement between the same parties. Under the Master Purchase Agreement, Proterra has agreed to purchase from the Company battery modules for use in Proterra’s heavy duty vehicles, with actual orders to be represented by individual purchase orders. The Company has agreed to accept purchase orders from Proterra for a period of 36 months following the date of the Master Purchase Agreement, following which time either party may terminate the Master Purchase Agreement without cause with 60 days notice. The Company has also agreed that, for twelve months from the effective date of the Master Purchase Agreement and subject to certain conditions, it will not sell similar batteries for heavy duty vehicles to North America-, European-, or South America-based OEM bus manufacturers or their drive system or energy storage system supplies, with certain specified exceptions

If the Company discontinues the sale of products and fails to offer a replacement product, the Proterra will have the right to license Altair’s technology on the terms and conditions of a license agreement attached to the Master Purchase Agreement. Proterra’s license will only go into effect on, and continue through the duration of, the Company’s failure to offer replacement products, the Company’s entering into bankruptcy, the Company’s liquidation, or the Company’s making a general assignment for the benefit of its creditors. In conjunction with this obligation, the Company has agreed to place in escrow all non-public technical information reasonably necessary for the manufacture of the battery products being sold to Proterra under the Master Purchase Agreement. The Master Purchase Agreement also contains such other terms as are generally found in such agreements, such as those dealing with warranties, indemnification, limitation on liability, and confidentiality.

Simultaneous to their execution of the Master Purchase Agreement, the Company and Proterra entered into a Purchase Order No. 3, pursuant to which Proterra has ordered product from the Company under the Master Purchase Agreement in the aggregate value of $4,610,700 spread out over nine product shipments beginning October 31, 2010. In conjunction with the Purchase Order No. 3, the Company agreed to grant to Proterra a security interest in all of the Company’s inventory, parts and components dedicated by the Company to complete Proterra’s initial order of products.

The foregoing descriptions of the Master Purchase Agreement and Purchase Order No. 3 and attachments thereto are not complete and are qualified in their entirety by reference to the full text of such agreements, copies of which are filed herewith as exhibits to this Current Report on Form 8-K and are incorporated herein by reference.
