On November 8, 2004, DIMON Incorporated (NYSE: DMN) and Standard Commercial Corporation (NYSE: STW) jointly announced that they have entered into a definitive merger agreement.

The combination of DIMON and Standard is expected to be accretive to earnings per share in the first full year after the merger as a result of significant cost savings and synergies and to drive profitable growth and build value over the long term by realizing enhanced economies of scale. The merged company, which will initially be called DimonStandard Incorporated, is also expected to benefit from a combined portfolio of value-added service capabilities, and an enhanced ability to compete for future outsourcing of similar services from its customers, thereby providing a more comprehensive solution to customer supply needs. The new company will combine proven abilities in customer service, global agronomic programs, industry-leading processing capability, new product development, leaf supply and information technology advancements, while maintaining stability, agility, financial strength and a commitment to core values.

The closing of the merger is subject to customary closing conditions, including financing considerations, approval by the shareholders of each of DIMON and Standard, approval of U.S. and foreign antitrust authorities and effectiveness of a proxy statement/prospectus relating to shareholder approval.
